HISTORY OF DISCRIMINATION OVER THE WORLD

There is discrimination since the beginning of the mankind. The earliest type of discrimination is the discrimination against women. After that arised the another general types, like racism.

WHAT IS SLAVERY?

Slavery is, in the strictest sense of the term, any system in which principles of property law are applied to people, allowing individuals to own, buy and sell other individuals, as a de jure form of property. A slave is unable to withdraw unilaterally from such an arrangement and works without remuneration.

AFRICAN SLAVERY

- The Apartheid is a policy or system of segregation or discrimination on grounds of race. It dates between 1948 and 1991.
- Nelson Mandela was the president of South Africa from 1994 to 1999. His government focused on dismantling the legacy of apartheid by tackling institutionalised racism and fostering racial reconciliation.

INDIAN SLAVERY

Slavery was practised throughout colonial India in various manifestations. In reality, the movement of Indians to the Bukharan slave markets did not cease and Indian slaves continued to be sold in the markets of Bukhara well into the nineteenth century. The indian slavery was ended by queen Victoria.

DISCRIMINATION OF WOMEN

Discrimination of women in the world is still a very real problem. Even though we have made huge strides against it, it is still devastating throughout the world. The United Nations Women's Treaty was implemented a few decades ago was supposed to give women the rights to take part in their nations political and public life but that hasn't changed much. In many countries women are still unable to vote or even wear what they want.

SEXUAL ORIENTATION DISCRIMINATION

This is when you are treated differently because of your sexual orientation in one of the situations that are covered by the Equality Act. The treatment could be a one-off action or as a result of a rule or policy based on sexual orientation. It doesn't have to be intentional to be unlawful.

There are some circumstances when being treated differently due to sexual orientation is lawful.
